

Engage & Lead Responsibly

2021 Corporate Responsibility Progress Report

Altria

Altria has a leading portfolio of tobacco products for U.S. tobacco consumers age 21+. Altria's Vision by 2030 is to responsibly lead the transition of adult smokers to a smoke-free future (Vision). Altria is Moving Beyond Smoking™, leading the way in moving adult smokers away from cigarettes by taking action to transition millions to potentially less harmful choices. We have the opportunity to shape a better future for adult tobacco consumers, our employees, shareholders and society.

To achieve our Vision, we will pursue initiatives designed to promote the long-term welfare of our company, our stakeholders, society at large and the environment. We believe the actions we are taking will create a different Altria – and a different tobacco landscape that we believe will benefit today's adult tobacco consumers, our businesses and the thousands we employ. Our responsibility focus areas address the issues we believe are most important to drive this progress.

What's in this report?

In 2021, we announced six responsibility focus areas, each with associated 2025 goals, as an output of our in-depth 2020 responsibility materiality assessment. We believe these are the most important areas to guide our actions toward achieving our Vision and to our long-term sustainability and success. Importantly, these areas are aligned with stakeholder expectations of companies broadly and tobacco companies specifically.

This report provides an overview of Altria's commitment to Engage and Lead Responsibly across our businesses and within our industry. It highlights how we practice continuous learning, engage with stakeholders and govern to drive accountability across our businesses. It also provides examples of progress in 2021 and outlines plans for 2022.

Note: When used in this report, the terms "Altria", "we", "us", and "our" refer to Altria Group, Inc. and its consolidated subsidiaries, unless otherwise noted.

Beyond this report

This report is not designed to provide a comprehensive review of progress across all our responsibility focus areas. We share progress toward our focus area goals, including important metrics and data, in a series of reporting vehicles and formats designed to meet the needs of multiple stakeholders, all available through our website.

From Our CEO

It's a dynamic and exciting moment in Altria's history. When I joined the company 27 years ago, I couldn't have imagined the changes – and the opportunities – that are before us today.

We have an unprecedented opportunity to transform our industry for the better. As the industry leader in the U.S., we're leading the way in Moving Beyond Smoking™ – moving from a tobacco company to a tobacco harm reduction company. I believe doing so will benefit adult tobacco consumers, our business, shareholders, the thousands we employ and society at large.

Responsibility is a core tenet of our Vision: to responsibly transition adult smokers to a smoke-free future. We're committed to being a good corporate citizen and making a positive impact where we can. Last year, we shared the results of our latest responsibility materiality assessment and identified the environmental, social and governance (ESG) issues we believe are most critical to our business. Much of the scope of these responsibility focus areas are already integrated into our long-term plans, employees' day-to-day work and our compensation structures. In less developed areas, we're working to do so.

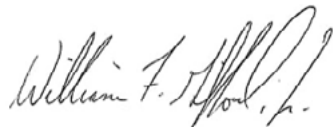

Through this integrated approach, we made exciting progress toward our Vision in 2021, delivered outstanding business results and made important progress within each of our responsibility focus areas. You can read more about our business results and ESG progress in our 2021 Annual Report, proxy statement for the 2022 Annual Meeting and most recent corporate responsibility reports on Altria.com.

We also made recent leadership changes, which I believe advance both inclusion, diversity and equity and ESG integration more broadly.

- Kathryn McQuade is the first woman to serve as Board Chair. She was elected independent Chair of our Board in May 2021, following the unfortunate passing of our former Chair, Tom Farrell. Kathryn brings a wealth of knowledge and 10 years of Altria Board experience to her leadership role, including as previous Chair of the Nominating, Corporate Governance and Social Responsibility Committee.
- This year, we named Jennifer Hunter, Senior Vice President of Corporate Citizenship, as our first Chief Sustainability Officer. Jennifer has spent most of her 28-year career at Altria leading critical work that supports our ESG strategies and progress, including underage prevention and cessation support, community impact, corporate responsibility and – more recently – inclusion, diversity and equity. Jennifer leads with humility and a commitment to inclusive engagement and partnerships to drive collective progress.

While I'm proud of our progress to date, we certainly have opportunities for further improvement. And as we work to transform our company and industry, we'll face uncertainties and challenges that will require patience, grit and determination to overcome. But I know we will rise to these challenges together. It's been a difficult few years, and I couldn't be more proud of how our employees demonstrated strength and resiliency throughout the pandemic and delivered strong business results despite significant personal challenges. Our operating companies' manufacturing employees are the backbone of our success, and they showed up each day to make sure our companies' products were available for adult consumers amidst strict COVID safety guidelines. Their dedication inspired us all.

I'm confident that our talented employees, outstanding portfolio of premium brands and core commitment to responsibility will continue propelling us forward in our journey toward Moving Beyond Smoking™. And while this brief letter only scratches the surface, I invite you to learn more in the following pages about what fuels my belief in Altria, our leadership and our Vision.

From Our Chief Sustainability Officer

More than two years – and what feels like a lifetime – have passed since our reality was turned upside down with the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic. Today, we're still grappling with uncertainties around the future and the deep-seeded political, environmental and social issues that events of the past two years surfaced. From the humanitarian impacts of climate change, to the centuries-deep harm caused by systemic inequities, society is calling for businesses, governments and other institutions to reckon with these challenges.

It's in this context that the role of companies is elevated – from “do no harm” to “contribute positively and proactively to the world.” The 2021 global Edelman Trust Barometer shows that business is the most trusted institution and the only one seen as both ethical and competent. This trust comes with a leadership responsibility I believe companies are called to honor with their actions. I'm proud of how Altria is meeting that call.

This year, I write to you as both our Senior Vice President, Corporate Citizenship and first Chief Sustainability Officer. The connection of these titles and this work is intentional and important. “Corporate Sustainability” has graduated beyond the traditional definition associated solely with environmental impact. At Altria, “sustainability” is the long-term success we set out to achieve for all our stakeholders when we drive well-managed progress toward the most important environmental, social and governance issues for our businesses. It's the integration of our responsibility as a corporate citizen and our commitment to stakeholder capitalism.

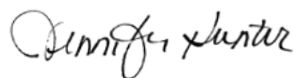

As a leader in the U.S. tobacco industry, we understand our primary responsibility is to drive positive change through our Vision – for our adult tobacco consumers, employees, communities, society and the industry. I believe our 2020 responsibility materiality assessment set us on the right path. However, our world and our businesses are not static, so our discovery is never “done.” We routinely monitor and assess our stakeholders' expectations, regulatory developments and ESG trends. We stay on track by incorporating what we learn and evolving our focus and goals as we go.

In 2021, we strengthened our internal structure to better support our ESG leadership aspirations. We added more talent to the corporate citizenship team; upskilled employees on ESG; formed executive-led steering committees for each responsibility focus area; and enhanced governance of our ESG reporting. In addition, we completed an internal assessment of Altria's readiness for future third-party assurance of ESG information. We've also expanded our disclosures to increase transparency – publishing our inaugural Task Force on Climate-Related Disclosures report, our EEO-1 disclosure and our first ESG Data Tables to make it easy for stakeholders to assess our progress over time.

I believe that the steps we've taken have positioned us well to meet the evolving expectations of our stakeholders – including our regulators (as I write this letter, the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission has issued a proposed rule to require and standardize climate change disclosure across companies). And yet, there's always room to improve.

That's why we talk about this work as a journey. We make progress and reach important milestones, but there's no “final destination.” It's what makes our work challenging, and very exciting. Driving positive change while creating value for stakeholders – with a finish line that keeps moving – requires dedicated, passionate and resilient people. Altria's competitive advantage – and the true strength of our leadership – lies in the caliber of our incredible employees. They push us to be better, more innovative and accountable for progress toward our Vision. And, they understand the power of strategic partnerships, inviting others to the table to help us address our toughest issues. We believe we're better equipped to navigate these societal challenges because of the strength of our people and partnerships. Together, we'll keep journeying toward our Vision, responsibly. Sustainably.

I'm proud of how far we've come and energized by where we're headed. As always, thank you for your interest.

Stakeholder Engagement Across Our Value Chain

At Altria, we engage with stakeholders to accelerate progress on environmental and social issues that are relevant to our businesses and where we can have the strongest impact. Two-way dialogue, based on open and honest communication, helps us understand the issues that present risks and opportunities for our businesses. This includes talking with employees, consumers, investors, suppliers, policy makers, regulators, trade partners and community leaders.

Our companies develop, manufacture and market tobacco products and provide jobs for approximately 6,000 employees in 50 states and Washington, D.C.

Our value chain includes over 1,200 direct contracted tobacco growers, third-party suppliers who purchase from growers across the globe, over 4,100 suppliers worldwide and a distribution network of over 300,000 retail stores along with a network of wholesalers.

When you make products for adults, society expects you to market responsibly, and we agree. In 2021, age-and-identity-verified adult tobacco consumers 21+ on our Adult Tobacco Consumer Database engaged with our tobacco operating companies' branded websites more than 44 million times. We believe our deep understanding of the consumers engaging with us will help us responsibly support adult smoker transition to smoke-free products.

How We Lead

Altria's CEO and senior management oversee our responsibility efforts. We engage with our Board on ESG strategy and issues at the full Board level and through various committees. The Nominating, Corporate Governance and Social Responsibility (NCGSR) Committee provides core oversight to review Altria's environmental and social responsibility strategies, and oversees our public affairs activities, corporate reputation and governance. In addition to the NCGSR Committee, the Board has also delegated oversight responsibilities to committees for specific responsibility areas. For example, the Innovation Committee oversees our product innovation efforts and strategies that are critical to our harm reduction goals as well as oversight of our efforts to reduce environmental impact of our manufacturing operations and products. The Compensation and Talent Development Committee oversees our initiatives, programs and processes related to talent development and culture including ESG integration into executive compensation. And the Audit Committee oversees our risk assessment and risk management policies and practices and compliance with legal and regulatory requirements.

Altria's responsibility focus areas are integrated into enterprise planning, strategies and initiatives. For each focus area we formed Steering Committees led by senior executives with accountability for strategic alignment of initiatives and investments, outcomes and driving progress toward 2025 goals. These committees convene regularly and are comprised of leaders from accountable functions, including subject matter experts.

We acknowledge stakeholder expectations for transparent, decision-useful disclosures of our progress and we took steps to further enhance governance of our ESG reporting by implementing a process for data and disclosure review, substantiation and reporting. The core of this process is an ESG Disclosure Working Group with representation from Corporate Citizenship, Corporate Audit, Law, Finance, Corporate Communications and Investor Relations.

In 2021, we reviewed our annual incentive compensation plan to assess whether employees were adequately incentivized to achieve our responsibility focus area goals.

We're privileged to serve as members of Altria's Board of Directors. The Board's primary responsibility is to foster Altria's long-term success by establishing broad corporate policies, setting strategic direction and overseeing management. To do so, we monitor performance against Altria's strategic priorities and oversee key risk areas, including Altria's ESG risks, priorities and initiatives. In my years of board service, I've had the honor to work alongside fellow directors who bring to the boardroom diversity, broad leadership experiences and deep subject matter expertise in a variety of areas. We believe the Board's diversity promotes effective oversight and rigorous decision making.

Adapting Our Approaches through Continuous Learning

Altria's focus areas and initiatives are rooted in our responsibility materiality assessment process – a comprehensive, formal approach to identify the most impactful ESG issues that we believe promote long-term sustainability and success. Following our 2020 assessment, we established 2025 goals aligned with our business priorities and stakeholder expectations. Making progress toward achieving those goals includes continuous monitoring of emerging trends, soliciting feedback from stakeholders and adapting our approaches to mitigate risk and capitalize on opportunities for our businesses. In the last year, we conducted additional stakeholder research to guide our reporting of decision-useful data in line with stakeholder expectations. For example, we've seen a significant escalation in expectations and regulations associated with climate change and waste, which influenced our support of Task Force on Climate-related Financial Disclosures (TCFD), publication of our inaugural TCFD report, and additional focus on product packaging alternatives. We believe our approach to responsibility mitigates risks while positioning us to succeed in a rapidly evolving landscape.

Executive Message

Sal Mancuso
Executive Vice President
Chief Financial Officer
Altria Group, Inc.

In 2021, we made some great progress toward our 2025 goals. It's our priority to address the most relevant environmental issues for our business and then mitigate risk and capitalize on the opportunities. Last year, we examined those risks and opportunities through the climate-related scenario analysis included in our Task Force on Climate-related Financial Disclosures (TCFD) report. We developed an even stronger picture of the potential longer-term business impacts of climate change and more clarity on how we need to manage our transition to a low-carbon future. We're committed to building integrated environmental solutions across the enterprise, in areas such as product innovation, packaging and policy advocacy. We're also making progress toward our ambitious 2030 science-based targets. With the sale of our wine business, we need to review and reset those targets and assess what a 2050 net zero target would look like for our companies. We have strong teams leading this work and we remain committed to equipping them, making strategic investments and building the right partnerships to protect our environment.

Why it Matters

Climate change presents global risk, humans are the primary cause and inaction is not an option. We understand the effects our companies and their products may have on our environment, including climate change, changes to water quality and availability, and cigarette butt litter; as well as the effects changes in nature have on our companies - and the associated risks for our businesses.

The way a company engages with its value chain is a reflection of its culture. Our cultural aspiration is that we shape our future, do what's right, care for each other, deliver for our consumers and customers, and rise to the challenge together. This approach guides our Value Chain commitments, too, and I'm incredibly proud of the teams who drive this work and how they get it done. I'm also amazed by what they accomplished in 2021 in a fast-paced external environment with various challenges. We know we wouldn't make progress toward our goals without a clear picture of our value chain operations. Through a number of initiatives, we've been able to gain valuable insight and a deeper understanding of our extended environmental footprint. This year, we plan to lean into technology solutions to improve visibility across our supply chain and enable valued retail and wholesale trade partners to do the same. I'm excited about strengthening our operations through automation and new technology and the opportunity to continue harnessing the power of our value chain.

Why it Matters

Responsibly sourcing the raw materials and services for our companies' products and supporting responsible retailing is not only a benefit for the communities with which we do business, but also necessary to sustain our businesses into the future.

2021 Progress Highlights

Launched a $250,000 Stronger Together challenge to support industry-led, sustainable efforts toward inclusion, diversity and equity (IDE). Funded a range of projects submitted by trade partners.

67%+ of our key suppliers submitted responses to CDP's Climate Change, Forest and Water Security questionnaires at our request.

100% leaf supplier participation in the Sustainable Tobacco Program (STP) self-assessment.

100% contracted tobacco grower participation in the Good Agricultural Practices Certification (GAPC) program and 98% of them were certified against our goal of 100%.

Senior Vice President
Regulatory Affairs
Altria Client Services

Leading the U.S. in Moving Beyond Smoking™ requires collaboration with many important stakeholders. That's why leaning into engagement and partnership was so critical to our 2021 progress. We first listened to our consumers to better understand and empathize with adult smokers – their journeys, motivators and barriers to transitioning to smoke-free products. We supported our trade partners with programs and resources to expand the availability of our smoke-free products. Our scientists led multiple harm-reduction engagements with stakeholders across the scientific and public health community. And to drive more progress, faster, a large cross-functional team of leaders worked together to identify the most important pathways to create the regulatory and policy conditions for harm reduction to succeed. I'm proud of the groundwork we're laying in using science to develop a smoke-free product pipeline that we believe can successfully transition adult smokers and achieve FDA authorization. This also includes a framework for equitable harm reduction – where a reduced harm future is available to all smokers, inclusive of all demographic and socio-economic backgrounds. And I'm excited to keep up our momentum in 2022 by continuing the financial and human capital investments required to support adult smokers' transition to a smoke-free future.

Why it Matters

The use of tobacco products is a significant public health concern. To meet evolving adult smoker expectations and address stakeholder concerns, we need to continue to work to reduce the harm of tobacco products and develop a deep understanding of the smoker mindset, to more effectively and equitably transition smokers to potentially less harmful alternatives.

2021 Progress Highlights

200+ tobacco harm reduction engagements with federal and state elected officials/ policymakers, including in 46 states.

Advocated that FDA address adult smoker nicotine misperceptions to facilitate transitioning to smoke-free products.

15 engagements with the FDA;
34 engagements with public health stakeholders on harm reduction.

Filed 151 new patents related to harm reduction efforts.

Acquired remaining 20% ownership stake of the global on! business and increased distribution of on! to ~117,000 stores.

Visits to QuitAssist increased by 138% in 2021 vs 2020.

Preventing and reducing underage use of tobacco products is critical for us to achieve our Vision. Today, underage use of conventional tobacco products is at the lowest levels in a generation. And while we celebrate the progress and are proud of the actions we've taken to support it, we also know that we cannot and do not make this progress alone. Since the height of the youth vaping epidemic in 2019, we've been proactively deepening our long-standing commitments to underage access prevention – including how we partner with others to make progress. In 2021, we funded new positive youth development program partners to discourage youth from engaging in risky behaviors including tobacco use. Our operating companies upheld our standards for responsible marketing while continuing to innovate new and creative ways to engage with adult tobacco consumers 21+. And our retail trade programs successfully expanded the adoption of our age-validation technology with retailers across the country to strengthen underage access prevention. In 2022, I'm eager to keep learning from our external engagements to inspire us in new ways as we work to shut down the tobacco “on ramp” for youth, while preserving the “off ramp” for adult smokers.

Why it Matters

The concepts of tobacco harm reduction and underage tobacco prevention are directly linked, and we remain committed to both as we lead the adult smoker transition to smoke-free products. We also recognize that our portfolio now includes a broad range of products intended for adults.

2021 Progress Highlights

Executed quarterly Underage Tobacco Use Surveys

since Q2 2020 to broaden understanding of latest product-specific underage tobacco use trends, and shared the data with the FDA.

Continued to support Tobacco 21 laws, now enacted in 39 states and DC.

Increased use of point-of-sale age validation technology to more than 104,000 retail stores representing 62% of PM USA volume.

Granted $25.2 million to positive youth development organizations from our Board-allocated contributions.

Continued to support efforts to reduce youth usage of e-vapor, with national survey data reflecting a decline since 2019. The Center for Disease Control and Prevention's 2021 National Youth Tobacco Survey* showed middle and high schoolers reported past 30-day e-vapor use

2019	2020	2021
20%	13.1%	7.6%

* Due to differences in data collection procedures, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention advises that any comparison of the 2021 NYTS estimates to previous NYTS survey years that were primarily conducted on school campuses should be interpreted with caution.

Executive Message

Charlie Whitaker
Senior Vice President
Chief Human Resources Officer
Chief Compliance Officer Altria Group, Inc.

The last two years affected us all in more ways than we're probably able to express. Corporations have seen significant outflows and inflows of talent. While we're grateful that we're seeing high rates of retention for employees – including the more mobile millennial segment – we must continue to nurture and grow our talent and press forward to create an exceptional employee experience that allows our organization to thrive. We believe employee listening sessions provided the opportunity to understand our people on a deeper level and address their needs. These sessions have set us up to make more progress in creating the equitable culture our employees expect and deserve – from the way we hire internally, to the way we reward leaders who demonstrate allyship and advocacy. Work with familiar and new community partners is allowing us to think differently about education, workplace readiness and workforce development – and Altria's role as both a benefactor and a beneficiary of progress in our community across our operations. We're expanding the use of people analytics to systematically gather, track and analyze our internal trends to become more proficient with predicting attrition and future skills needed to realize our Vision. In 2022, I look forward to continuing to transform the way we work in new ways aligned with Our Cultural Aspiration and for the benefit of all employees.

Why it Matters

We intend to remain an employer of choice in a rapidly evolving talent market – providing experiences that help our workforce achieve their full potential and doing what's right in our communities – investing, volunteering and collaborating to drive positive change.
